WHAT TO DO IF POLIO COMES YOUR WAY

Keep children with their own friends. Keep them away from people they have not been with right along, especially in close, daily living. Many people have polio infection without showing signs of sickness. Without knowing it, they can pass the infection on to others.

Try not to get over-tired by work, hard play or travel. If you already have the polio infection in your body, being very tired may bring on serious polio.

Keep from getting chilled. Don't bathe or swim too long in cold water. Take off wet clothes at once. Chilling can lessen your body's protection against polio.

Keep clean. Wash hands carefully before eating and always after using the toilet. Hands may carry polio infection into the body through the mouth. Also keep food clean and covered.

WATCH FOR EARLY SIGNS OF SICKNESS

Polio starts in different ways—with headache, sore throat, upset stomach or fever. Persons coming down with polio may also feel nervous, cross or dizzy. They may have trouble in swallowing or breathing. Often there is a stiff neck and back.

ACT QUICKLY—CALL YOUR DOCTOR AT ONCE

Until he comes, keep the patient quiet and in bed, away from others.

The Secret Cave

PETER PORKCHOPS was walking through the woods one day when suddenly he tripped over a vine.

"OOPS!" he cried, falling flat on his face.

Then he noticed something very strange. The vine was attached to a log, and when he'd tripped, the vine had pulled the log up—revealing a deep hole in the earth! When Peter peered down he saw that the hole led someplace, for way down below the ground he saw a pinpoint of light flicker unsteadily.

"Why, it's the kind of flicker a candle makes when it burns!" said Peter to himself. "This is amazing! I wonder if it would be safe to let myself down into the hole by hanging onto this vine!"

But whether it was safe or not, Peter's curiosity got the better of him. So, carefully and quietly, in case some awful danger lurked below him, he grabbed the hanging vine and swung down into the hole.

"WOW!" he exclaimed when he reached the bottom. "I MUST BE DREAMING!"

Peter rubbed his eyes. But no, he was awake, all right! And this was what he'd found: a secret cave, with nothing in it except one flickering candle on top of a HUGE CAKE OF ICE!

"It's very warm in here," thought Peter. "It's odd that the hunk of ice doesn't seem to be melting at all!"

But when he walked over to the candle, he discovered why the ice wasn't melting. It wasn't melting because it wasn't ice! Instead it was . . . a DIAMOND . . . FOUR FEET TALL AND TWO FEET SQUARE!

"Goodness me!" Peter gasped. "Not even a giant has a finger big enough to wear this diamond on!"

The more Peter thought about it, the more worried he became. After all, a diamond of this size must be worth a lot of money—more money, maybe, than a king owned, or a millionaire, or even ten kings plus twenty millionaires! And what if somebody bad . . . somebody like . . . like A. WOLF, were to find it here, and trade it in for cash, and use the money for a selfish purpose.

"No! No! No! No!" Peter squealed. "I've got to hide it!"

But how could he remove such a huge diamond from such a deep cave? Then Peter got an idea. . . .

Several hours later a truck rumbled up the roadway through the woods, and Peter stood in the road to block its way. When the driver got out to find out what the trouble was, Peter signaled him over to the cave.

"You're the iceman, aren't you?" asked Peter.

"That's right, bud!" replied the iceman.

"Well, you're just in time! I have a large piece of ice that I'd like you to deliver to my home." Peter pointed to the hole in the ground. "It's down there!"

The iceman scratched his head, a bit puzzled, but he thought to himself, "It isn't my job to ask questions. I'm just supposed to deliver ice!"

So he slid down the vine, hauled up the ice with his heavy ice picks, and placed it in his truck. Peter hitched a ride with him into town, and when the diamond was safely set in Peter's kitchen, he paid the iceman for his trouble. But just as he was about to shut the door, someone kicked it open and strolled into the kitchen.

"Wolfie!" Peter screeched. "Get out of my house!"

But Wolf ignored him with a smile and then said slyly, "Very strange, Peter, you having ice delivered to you when you own an electric refrigerator!"

Peter shook in his boots! "Oh golly!" he thought in terror. "Any second now Wolf will notice that the ice is out in the middle of a hot kitchen, but isn't melting!"

"That hunk of ice," Wolf sneered, staring at it intently, "is not melting!"

"S-so wh-what?" Peter gasped.

"So quite obviously it's not ordinary ice!" said Wolf.

"Oh, b-but I'm sure it's ordinary," Peter replied.

"Listen, stupid, that ice is no more ordinary than I am!" Wolf snapped. "It's not melting because it's DRY ICE!"

"Oh!" said Peter, almost laughing out loud in relief. Then, stalling for time, he asked, "What's dry ice?"

"You know very well what dry ice is," Wolf yowled, "and you know as well as I do what you were intending to use this dry ice for! You know it hurts to touch dry ice, so you were gonna fix it so I'd sit on it when I came to visit you, instead of on a chair! Your trick won't work though, Peter, 'cause you're the one who's gonna sit on dry ice! Haw! Haw! Let's see how you like it!"

Wolf pushed Peter onto the big square diamond. "EEK!" shrieked Peter. "OW! LET ME OFF! OUCH!"

"HA-HA-HA!" chortled Wolf, and he walked out the door, still doubled up with laughter. When he'd disappeared up the street, Peter stopped howling and started laughing too.

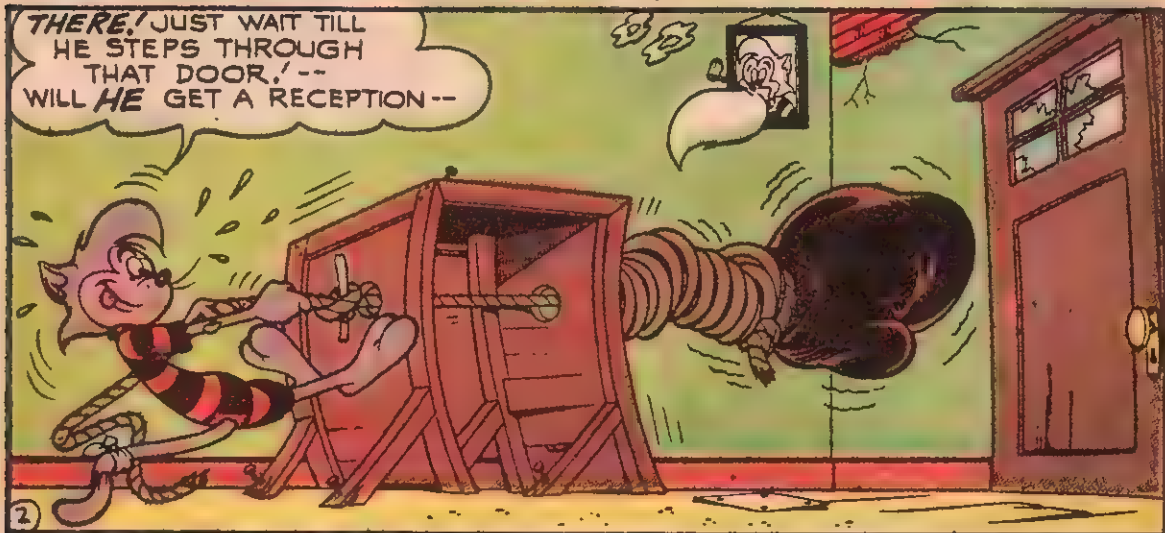

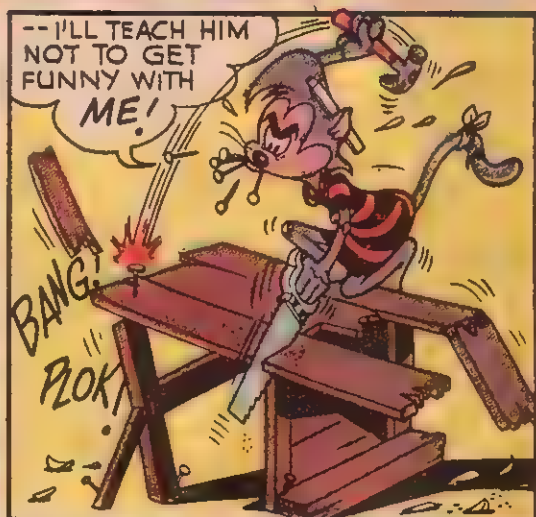

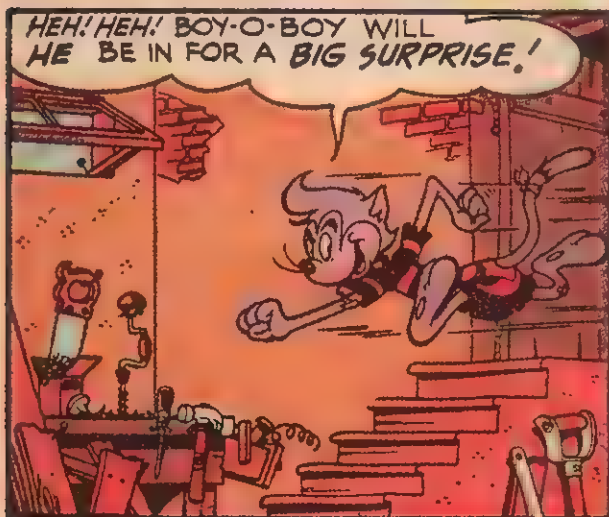

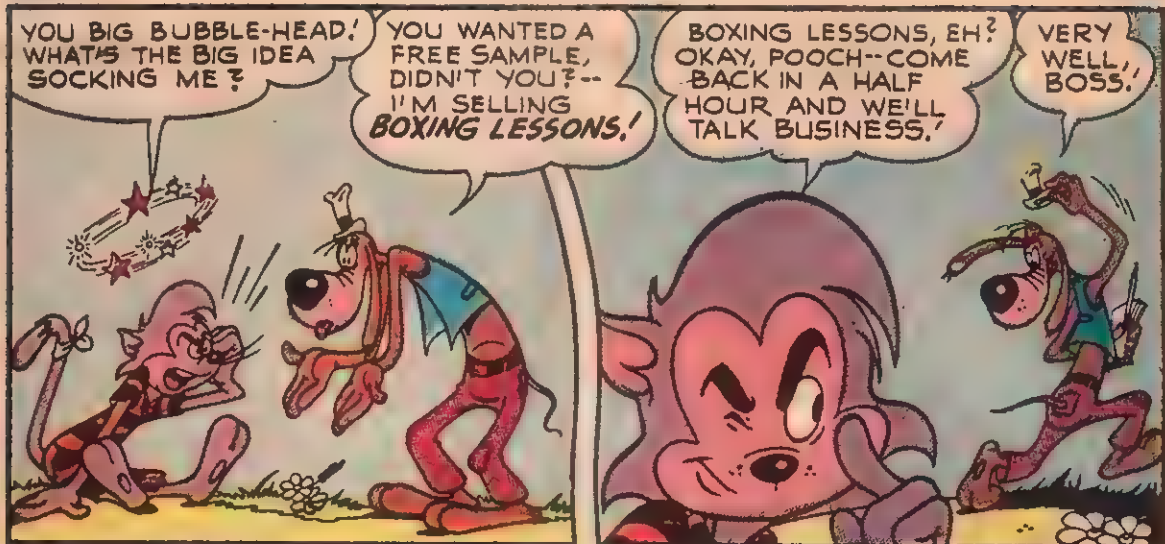

"HA-HA-HA-HA!" he giggled, "That dry ice almost killed me! Yeah!"

The next day Peter Porkchops lugged a heavy box into the Town Hall. In it was the huge diamond, which he was donating to Zooville—provided, of course, that it was used for a fund: THE FUND FOR THE ABOLITION OF WOLVES FROM ZOOVILLE!
